

Call it the Scattergun Dilemma

So often, we shotgunners are expected to either settle for so-so performance from an affordable shotgun, or to pay the equivalent of a used car for a fine, well-appointed piece. İstanbul Silah ends the Scattergun Dilemma with the introduction of its all-new İstanbul Silah, Impala Plus 12-gauge. Like the sleek, lightning-fast impala from which its name is drawn, the Impala Plus inertia-driven semi-automatic shotgun boasts beautiful balance, impressive quality, excellent downrange performance ... and a price tag for everyone.

The magic starts with a receiver machined from lightweight, aerospace-grade aluminum, shaving off ounces while maintaining rocket-ship ruggedness. Dual-purpose stainless-steel rails slotted within the receiver provide added rigidity and excellent anti-abrasion contact with the bolt. As for that bolt, unlike other shotguns (of any price), the Impala Plus uses a patented six-lugs design which offers more locking surface and assurance.

This fine Turkish shotgun's barrel is constructed of top-quality 4140 steel—what's more, each and every barrel is magnetic particle tested to 1.550 BAR. The large-bore design reduces friction and kickback while providing excellent patterning. The gun comes with included Full, Improved Modified, Modified, Improved Cylinder, and Skeet chokes. The high-ribbed barrel is topped with a unique sighting system: removable, snap on sights from TruGlo, which offer unmatched visibility in all shooting conditions.

Comfort is critical for success, and its inertia-driven action gives the Impala a soft-shooting base from which to build. Next, the Impala Plus is outfitted with a recoil pad crafted of a special shock-absorbing material.

The Impala Plus is impressive even as you unbox it—you can see the fit and finish that have gone into this firearm. Its classic style and fine balance come alive as you bring it to your shoulder. However, it's the performance and reliability that will amaze you. This shotgun's 3" chamber cycles reliably with everything from lightweight target loads to heavy-hitting waterfowl shells. Best of all, it handles and balances as beautifully as hand-made scatterguns that retail for five times the price of the Impala.

The Impala Plus is currently available in five finishes: black, carbon, Realtree Bottomland, Realtree Max-5, and Realtree Mobuc. Each model offers a 18" to 32" barrel and 4+1 and 7+1 ammo capacity. No, that is not a misprint. If that price seems too good to be true, we challenge you to pick one up and see why early reviewers are already calling the Impala Plus "the greatest bargain in semi-auto shotguns today."
