HUCK at GaLaBau 2026 - Experience Products, Feel Inclusion and Sustainability

Diversity, Innovation, and Responsibility: HUCK presents play equipment for all generations

At GaLaBau 2026, HUCK once again showcases its broad spectrum of innovative play equipment. Visitors can experience first-hand how modern play design combines inclusion, sustainability, and educational value.

Play Equipment that Creates Encounters

The focus of the trade fair appearance is on products that foster participation and community. Highlights for visitors include:

- Inclusion mat – for low-barrier access to every play structure
- Custom-made sun sails – for protection and well-being on any playground
- Balance Rocker – promotes balance and movement for children of all ages
- Original HUCK Sombrero Bird's Nest Swing - safe swinging thanks to an integrated backrest function
- Inclusive Rope Swing - a relaxing swinging experience for people with limited mobility
- Diverse net solutions – enabling tailor-made playground projects

“Our products are designed to provide fun and safety for all children and their companions,” explains Valentin Huck, Managing Director. “For us, inclusion is not just a concept – we put it into practice in every single product.”

Sustainability as a Guiding Principle

Alongside innovative play equipment, ecological responsibility is also central at HUCK. With transparent CO₂ balances at both company and product level (Corporate Carbon Footprint and Product Carbon Footprint), municipalities and architects can make sustainable decisions for their projects. From in-house photovoltaic systems to durable materials – HUCK makes climate protection visible and measurable.

Making Inclusion Tangible

The play equipment on display demonstrates in practical terms how barriers can be removed: alternative access points, multisensory elements, and low-barrier play values transform playgrounds into places of encounter for all generations. “Inclusion begins with listening and culminates in experience,” says Valentin Huck.
