

PRESENT CONNECTION:

Software development made personal

We are convinced that software development is not about technology, but about people. So, with our personal approach and communication we can make a difference.

Nearshoring

Nearshoring - working with remote teams - always brings the right people for the project that will match well within the company. There is a tendency to employ developers that is equally full of risk. Most development processes ask for multiple disciplines that you will not find in one person. Nearshoring offers you multiple roles to execute the project efficiently and effectively.

Our nearshoring team works constantly on applications with a long road map. And because they work from a distance, they are not being disturbed by the daily run of the mill. We also see that our clients want to spread their risks and not put all their eggs in one basket. When it comes to software development, the main reasons to choose for nearshoring are:

1. Scalability;
2. Flexibility;
3. Cost efficiency.

Technology

Our team is always trying to find the best solutions in order to reach your software project goals or to reduce development time and costs. We walk that extra mile building the most innovative applications based on the .NET, PHP, Python, Vue.js Angular.js, React.js, technology that fits your needs. For all other technologies, we work with external specialists.

What can you expect from us?

Communication

To every client we deliver a tailor-made communication model. On the basis of individual needs, we offer optimal tools and best practices for effective communication. In this way the remote team is managed like it would be present on the client's location. Hence trustfully outsourced.

Niche expertise

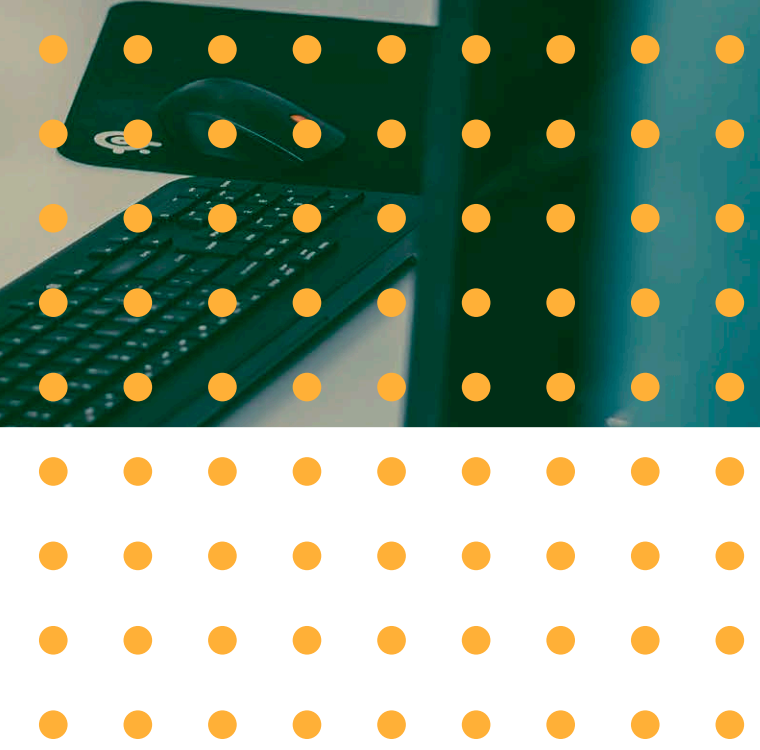

Finding talent on a local market can be a challenge. Present Connection has a large network of highly qualified Lithuanian software developers to ensure that there is always talent available.

Long-term partnership

A dedicated team means that our people work exclusively and full-time on the project. This allows us to build a long-term relationship, based on trust, quality and effectiveness.

Everything off your plate

No more daily administrative work. We take all operational obligations including contracting, payrolling, team setup, motivation, travel planning and logistics off your hands. That is how hiring a software development team without the daily hassle feels. Furthermore, Present Connection always offers support through our local representatives in The Netherlands.

Who we work for

