Preventive care for pets

Ear cleaner - cats

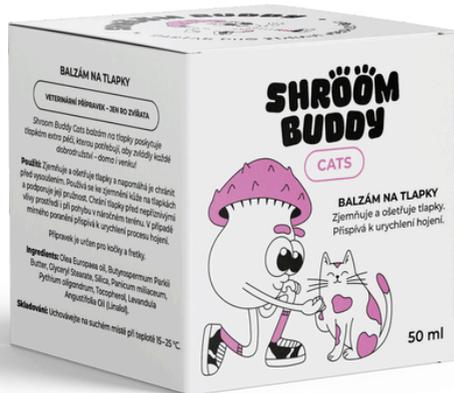

The product is used for gentle cleaning of the outer ear canal. It dissolves earwax and impurities while helping protect against microorganisms. It hydrates dry skin and soothes irritation. It is suitable for regular preventive care as well as for problems, for example when there is an overgrowth of Malassezia pachydermatis. It helps maintain microbial balance and prevents the ear canal from drying out.

Fresh breath - cats

Drops added to food or water

The product has a beneficial effect on the oral cavity with a tendency to gum irritation and tartar buildup. It helps reduce bad breath and freshens the breath. It serves as prevention against the formation of tartar and gum inflammation, but it is also suitable for existing problems. It helps lower the risk of pathogenic microorganisms and supports faster healing in cases of gum irritation or dental issues. Veterinarians also recommend its use to speed up skin regeneration in cases of feline acne. Designed for both prevention and treatment of problems.

Paw balm- cats

The product is designed to care for paw pads, the areas between the toes, and around the claws. Use it regularly as prevention – it protects against snow, hot pavement, and rough terrain. It also helps with problems such as dry or cracked paws, minor injuries, and irritation. It softens the skin, supports regeneration, and creates a protective layer for faster healing.

Hoof balm - horses

The balm is designed for intensive and long-term care of hooves and frogs affected by dryness, brittleness, or rot. It also helps with cracks and, thanks to its composition, supports regeneration and the natural protection of the hoof horn. When problems occur, apply the balm daily to a thoroughly cleaned hoof and frog. Apply a sufficient amount and spread it evenly over the entire area. For prevention and supportive care, use once a week.
