The offal procured from advanced slaughterhouses is meticulously selected and boxed for the production of our dog treat products. These boxed offals are then frozen in our cold storage facilities, ensuring their traceability and freshness are preserved

Our branded vehicle transports the frozen offal from the slaughterhouses in a -18 degree Celsius refrigerated compartment to our facility. This cold chain transportation ensures the offal maintains its quality until it arrives at our premises.

Upon arrival at our facility, the offal is stored under hygienic conditions in our cold storage rooms, which are temperature-controlled between -18 and -40 degrees Celsius. This storage method guarantees that our products are maintained according to the highest standards of hygiene throughout the production process.

Our metal detector meticulously scans for any metal fragments within our production line, ensuring that our products meet the highest safety standards before reaching the consumer. This process guarantees the safety and quality of each dog treat.

The products, having been boxed and packaged in accordance with standards, have reached the final stage of shipment preparation. Here, an employee places the products on pallets and wraps them with stretch film to ensure their safety during transportation. This orderly palletizing process aids in the protection and organization of the products during both storage and transit.
